

CHASING LIBERTY- SCENE 1 SCRIPT - (04:35-08:20)

Student 1: Anna — Student 2: Grant — Student 3: Weiss, Woman, Boy in a cap — Student 4: Morales, Mother, Police officer

Anna: I'm so glad you finally asked me out. It wasn't that hard, was it?

Grant: Well ...

Anna: Come on, I'm easy and OK, I'm not really easy, but ... I'm just gonna shut up, because I don't know what I'm saying right now.

Grant: I have wanted to ask you out for a long time. I was a little intimidated.

Anna: Because of my father?

Grant: No, because you're easy.

Anna: LAUGHS

Grant: I'm just going off what you said.

Weiss: It looks like Liberty found herself a good one this time. I hate first dates. Too painful.

Morales: For you or the girl?

Weiss: All I want is to love and be loved, Morales.

Mother: Hello!

Anna: Hi! Would you like to take a picture?

Mother: That would be great!

Anna: Come here.

Mother: Go, go, go!

Anna: You can stand here, right there

Mother: We're visiting from Florida. I voted for your father. My husband didn't care for him, but we're not together anymore. But not because of that. There were other things too. But I got the girls. Lylly get over there.

Anna: Come here. Here we go. Stand here.

Mother: -Thanks.

-Oh! That's great. Thank you.

Anna: You're so welcome. Have fun. Enjoy Washington.

Mother: Thank you.

Woman at the restaurant: Is that Anna Foster?

Grant: How can you stand all these people staring at you and coming up to you all the?

Anna: It's part of the job description. I mean, after six years in the White House and eight years as the Governor's daughter... I don't really know anything else.

Grant: Well... I think you'd get all this attention even if you weren't the First Daughter.

Anna: Yeah...

Weiss: You look good in that blouse. You should wear it more often.

Morales: Actually, it's a sweater.

Weiss: Sweater, blouse, you wear it well. Take a compliment.

Anna: Have you heard from Rhode Island yet?

Grant: Yeah, I got in.

Anna: Congratulations. I knew you would.

Grant: Well... My parents are really pushing pre-med.

Anna: I have this theory about parents. They want you to appreciate the good things in life but not do them. They want you to ...

Morales: Ehh, I think we've got something at 9 o'clock.

Anna: They want you to have love and find love and value love, but not make love, ever.

Boy in a cap: Hey!! I thought I'd make this night a little more memorable.

Morales: He's reaching. Go!

Anna: What are you guys doing? No, no, no...

Grant: Heyy! Wait, these are my friends.

Anna: You don't know what you're doing. Guys!

Police Officer: This is off limits.

Boy in a cap: It was only a camera.

Anna: I'm so sorry.

Grant: I should wait for them.

Anna: No, come on, it's still early. We could go catch a movie or something.

Grant: Anna, you are really great, but this is just way too out of control for me. I'm sorry.

Anna: Of course you can kiss me.

Weiss: Weiss to Control. Returning home with Liberty.

Weiss: Good night. Poor kid.

Morales: All right, well... at least she's home safe.

Weiss: How about I get you home safe?

Morales: How about I call you when I get there and let you know?

Weiss: Sure.

Weiss: You're not gonna call me, are you?

Morales: No.

Weiss: It's out of my way, anyway.
