

OUR STORY

The first settlements in the region date from the Paleolithic period, but only some archaeological rests of the Millares and Argar cultures are known.

URCI - We know the existence of an Iberoroman community between the villages of El Chuche and Pechina in the II century BC.

BAYYANA - Around the year 884, some Yemeni groups belonging to Abderraman II settle by the town of URCI and in the year 891, the town of Bayyana is created and declared to be the maritime republic of Bayyana. Its esplendour stars now. In the year 955, the construction of Al-Mariiyat is built. It will be the origin of the future Alcazaba of Almería, and at the same time, the begining of its decadence.

PECHINA- After the conquer of Almeria in 1489, the town sees the coexistence of the Christian and Moorish cultures. The old Christian tradition of the apostle Saint Indalecio is restarted, as well as the first episcopal see in Almeria. That is how Saint Indalecio becomes the patron of the town.
